

The topic of my website was Espresso Tonic Reviews. The purpose of this was to store the reviews that I write for every espresso tonic that I try. The reviews are just a fun thing that I do so that I can go out and try this drink at different coffee shops.

Each page either had responsive web design, transitions, and/or transformations. The navigation bar on every page had a color transition – each navigation tab had a rounded color border that appeared when you hover over it.

Page One (Home page) had a text-style transition on the words “join me,” which became italicized. The header on Page Two (Ranking + Reviews) also became italicized. I also applied responsive web design for Desktops and Mobiles onto this page. The last page contained both transformations and transitions. The header on this page also becomes italicized when hovered over, and the photo rotates 360 degrees when hovered over as well.

For the color scheme, I wanted to maintain the colors of an espresso tonic (brown and orange) but also include other complementary colors like pink, as seen through the website background color.
